

Loretta Bush, Midland Valley High educator, was recently named the 2010 Teacher of the Year for the SC Association for Career and Technical Education.

She has a Bachelor's of Science Degree in Home Economics Education and a Masters Degree in Education from South Carolina State University. Her twenty-seven years of experience include 24 in Aiken County Public Schools, with 22 years at Midland Valley High School. She is the current Chairperson of the Career and Technology Department and Family, Career, and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA) Club sponsor. She is also the High Schools That Work school representative and committee member.

Her husband, Howard Bush, as well as Carl White, Midland Valley High School principal, and Brooks Smith, Aiken County Career and Technical Center principal, were on hand to congratulate her.
